Overview

In previous versions of the Pokelon Project, Pokelon could only be caught in the form of NFTs during giveaways or farmed. This resulted in a number of problems as the original Pokelon were ETH based NFTs and resulted in high transaction fees for users depending on market conditions.

Now, we've created "off-chain" Pokemon that you can catch everyday in chat, in addition to their NFT based counterparts which you can win in giveaways. The Pokelon you catch can also be used in battle!

How do I catch Pokelon?

The primary ways to catch Pokelon are through fishing and hunting.

When you're in the Pokelon Telegram chat, you can try to catch Pokelon using the following two commands.

`/fish`

`/hunt`

What's the difference between fishing and hunting?

The Fishing Pond gives you access to a wide variety of water-based Pokelon, but also a variety of items that can be used to upgrade your equipment to catch rare Pokelon, evolve your existing Pokelon, increase your chances to catch and more.

The Hunting Ground contains every other type of Pokelon, but has no items available.

What do the items do?

Each Pokelon Trainer has a base set of equipment.

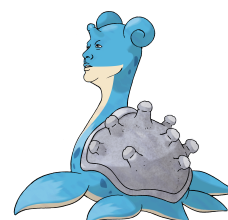

BNBall: This item allows you to hunt once every 24 hours.

Rusty Rod: This item allows you to fish once every 24 hours.

You can view your inventory at any time by typing /inventory in chat or DMing the Elondex directly and typing /inventory.

The exact items that can be found in the fishing pond is a secret! But upgrades that allow you to catch Pokelon more easily, fish or hunt more frequently or target specific types of Pokelon can be found. If you find upgraded equipment, Elondex will automatically equip it.

Remember, you can trade items or Pokelon with other users!

Okay, so I caught some...food?

If you check your /lineup and examine a Pokelon, you'll notice each of them has a "Health" stat. Health deteriorates by 1-2% a day and you'll need to feed your Pokelon to keep them in good health.

What happens if they starve?

Pokelon must be at 100% health in order to evolve them with a Moon Stone or Mars Stone!

Additionally, if they reach 0% health, you won't be able to use them in battle. But no worries, there are items that can prevent that!

What's a "Weather Event"?

Sometimes, there will be a specialized weather event in the Pokelon Telegram group where the odds of catching a specific Pokelon or a specific Pokelon type will increase dramatically. Keep an eye out for these events if you have your eye on a specific Pokelon!

I caught a Pokelon, what now?

To view your Pokelon, DM @elondex_ai_bot and type `/lineup`.

Here you can manage each Pokelon directly, rename it, release it or transfer it to another user.

How do I evolve my Pokelon?

You'll need a Moon Stone or a Mars Stone. These can be caught in the fishing pond. Once you have one, visit your Pokelon lineup on Elondex, choose the Pokelon you'd like to evolve, click Evolve and Evolve it!

Will the Elondex ever ask me for money or tokens?

Never. Please be sure you're talking to the real Elondex. If you're unsure at any time, type `/lineup` in the chat and click the button to open the correct DM on Telegram.
